

McEwan Lab Aspirations

What do we want our organization to be?

McEwanlab.org

A nationally-recognized research organization dedicated to advancing scientific understanding through peer-reviewed publications & presentations, graduate training, and successful pursuit of extramural funding.

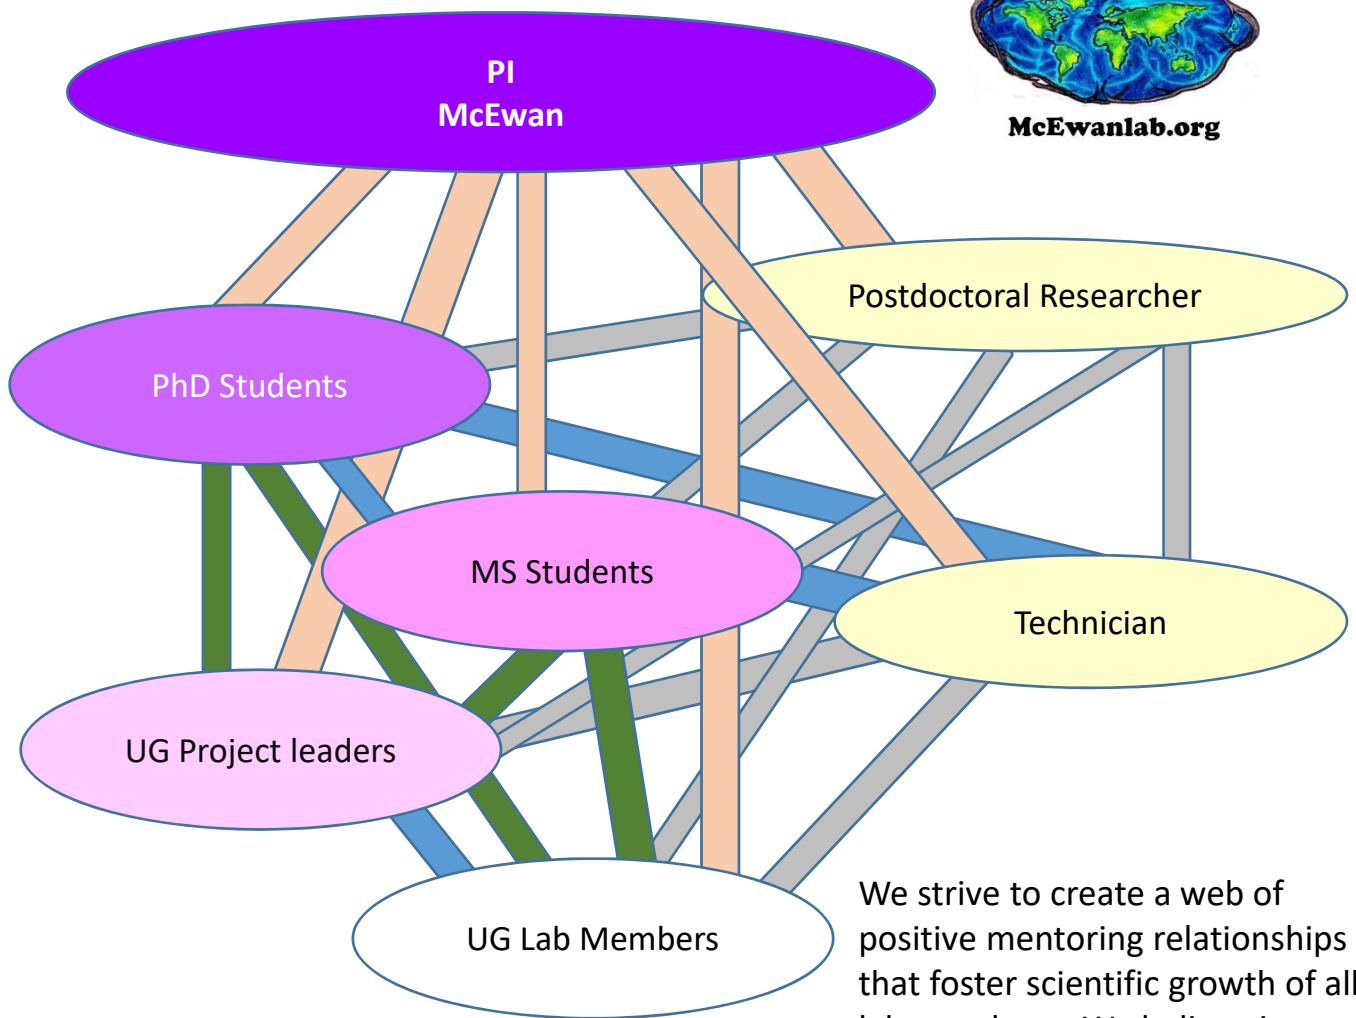

An educational organization focused on building on-ramps to careers in ecology for University of Dayton students through experiential learning, leadership training and career development activity.

A community-engaged and outward-facing organization dedicated to science communication and empowering science-based decision making by natural resource managers in the Miami Valley and beyond.

Mentoring support system

-  Mentoring by Principal Investigator
-  Peer mentoring
-  Grad student mentoring
-  Potential for in-lab professional mentoring

We strive to create a web of positive mentoring relationships that foster scientific growth of all lab members. We believe in cooperative management of the organization and open, supportive, communication.
